Royal Flying Doctor Service
SOUTH EASTERN SECTION

You're the lifeline. We're the wings.

Each year the Flying Doctor brings essential healthcare to 290,000 people across Australia – that's equivalent to one person every two minutes.

Life Saving Work

As well as providing emergency healthcare we facilitate over 15,000 clinics across Australia every year. By addressing health concerns early, the need for an emergency retrieval later can often be avoided.

In addition to doctors and pilots, our team includes mental health nurses, dentists and specialists. We take health services to remote communities so people living, working or travelling in Outback Australia can access care when they need it.

How you can help us

Workplace Giving is a great way for employees and organisations to support our life-saving work.

Money comes directly from employees' pre-tax pay; meaning they receive their tax benefit immediately. It is a simple, yet powerful way for employees to make a difference. They can give as much or as little as they like and can opt out at any time.

Benefits to employers

Tax deductible donations made through Workplace Giving can help to:

- create a more connected workplace, where giving is a collaboration between employer and employee
- recruit and retain staff
- increase your organisation's charitable giving with little effort or cost
- enhance your organisation's corporate social responsibility and community programs
- allow you to monitor the level of charitable giving your organisation has achieved

Matched giving

Matching employees' donations can inspire them to continue giving, while demonstrating your company's commitment to supporting the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

"We know we're lucky to be alive. We've got our children, we've got each other. We're just very thankful. Without the RFDS, I don't think we would have survived."

Rosy Ellsmore and her family were on a trip around Australia when they were involved in a serious car accident. All four members of the family needed care and were flown to hospital by the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

The Flying Doctor helps people travelling, living and working throughout Outback Australia.

We couldn't do it without you, so on behalf of the hundreds of thousands of people helped each year – thank you for considering workplace giving.

You can make a difference

For many of us, it is hard to imagine ourselves or a loved one being in an emergency situation that requires the life-saving services of the Flying Doctor. But for many people in the Outback it is a reality. With your support, we can continue to be there for those who need us.
